

Mexicans Denounce F. Diaz as a Most Miserable Failure

Though He Had Every Opportunity to Win Success, Old Dictator's Nephew Never Realized His Chance or Made Use of the Things in His Path

United Press Service

MEXICO CITY, April 22.—Admirers of Felix Diaz are very few in the Mexican capital. The enemies of his revolution, of course, execrate him, but he finds as much criticism among his former supporters as he does among those who have always opposed him.

"Lack of nerve and ability" is the charge generally brought against him. No man in Mexico has had more opportunities to make something of himself and take a hand in the destinies of Mexico than Felix Diaz, for, even though he was only the nephew of old President Diaz, the president felt even more kindly to Felix than he did to his own son, who was thoroughly incapable of assuming responsibility of any sort.

"I tried to make him a statesman," they say old Porfirio remarked of Felix, "and he wasn't big enough for it. I tried to make him a financier, and gave him every chance in the world, but he couldn't rise to the opportunity. I tried to make him a soldier, but he failed. Then I gave him the little job of being chief of police of Mexico City and he was happy."

Felix Diaz's seizure of Vera Cruz, before the downfall of Madero, is a story that is full of instances of his inability to make the most of opportunities. In the custom house, when Felix Diaz gained control of the town, was the sum of $3,000,000. Diaz never learned it was there until after he had been captured by Madero and his revolution had failed.

"Fool!" cried old Porfirio Diaz, in Paris, when he heard of this incident. "Felix was always ready to steal from the poor, but he wouldn't take money from a government he was trying to overthrow."

There were 10,000 rifles stored in Vera Cruz, which Felix Diaz might have seized, but, with his usual superficiality, he didn't know of their presence in the town until it was too late and he was in need of rifles and ammunition at that moment.

From a military standpoint Diaz also made a characteristic and fatal mistake when, after seizing Vera Cruz, he did not send out scouting parties to cut the railroad lines between the capital and his seaport stronghold. Over these lines, within a few hours after his revolution, troops were rushed to overthrow him, and Felix Diaz wound up in jail, with a death sentence hanging over his head.

Mexicans, like all other folks the world over, love a winner. But they have seen Felix Diaz fail in everything he undertook and they were not surprised to see Huerta, after Madero had been overthrown, seize the presidency and send the weak Felix away on a foreign mission.

Among all classes in Mexico, except for a few politicians who might profit by his success, the opinion is general that almost any candidate for the presidency who might be selected from present Mexican leaders would be more efficient than Felix Diaz.

Second Street Boulevard Is Cause of Protests

While the Second street boulevard movement has been greeted with enthusiasm by all those believing a lake shore drive will be a benefit, it cannot be said that this enthusiasm is rampant among the men whose property is adjacent to the thoroughfare.

Especially is this true since the viewers, Marion Hanks, D. B. Campbell and C. B. Cralier made their report, assessing the benefits and damages. This, the property owners say, is not equitable.

At last night's meeting of the council, following the reading of the report, an objection, signed by E. R. Reames, C. E. Wiley, Fred H. Mills and A. L. Leavitt, was presented to the council. This set forth several reasons for objection, among them the following:

The boulevard would cut off access to the lake, destroying dock and wharf privileges of the property cut through; would cut off all drainage into the lake; would totally destroy the value of the property as a waterfront, and that the benefits were assessed too high and the damages sustained would be greatly in excess of the benefits, if any, that might accrue.

All of the objectors were present in person.

"The Klamath Canal company and myself will put up $1,250 toward the construction of the boulevard, and I think we are being handed something," said Reames. "The narrow strip near the lake would be of no value, and the viewers put the benefits at $1,700 and the damages at $200. In addition to the loss of the property, we will also have to pay the assessments levied against the adjacent property.

If the city will move the roadway 150 feet from the lake I will gladly donate the damages," said Mr. Wiley. "The water front, with landing facilities for launches, etc., I believe, is a greater benefit to the city than the boulevard. Under the present routing we lose all benefits from the lake."

"The boulevard at present ends in a swamp. I don't believe it is the purpose to put it in with no outlet," said Leavitt.

"It is patent to the casual observer that the county is in no condition at this time to put in the connecting road to the fair ground. I believe it policy for this matter to be continued. It should remain in statu quo until the county has some light ahead."

Upon motion of Councilman Savidge, the matter was continued until Monday, to give the council an opportunity to look into both sides of the controversy.

DARKEN GRAY HAIR, LOOK YOUNG, PRETTY

SAGE TEA AND SULPHUR DARK
ENS NO NATURALLY THAT NO BODY CAN TELL

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe for about 50 cents.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy.
